Coaching Recap | 10/13 Eastern Time

With Bea (Client Success Manager) and Arque (Success Coach)

Where we stand: Most calls today ended at the gatekeeper. More dials alone won't change that. A sharper first 20 seconds will.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS

- The script is known. The next step is owning it. Prospects can hear when a script is being read. One prospect said the call was "too vague." Reading word for word is what makes it sound that way.
- Every gatekeeper answer is a clue. "Wrong office" is a chance to ask for the right number. "She's busy" is a chance to ask when she's free. Each answer is a door, not a wall.
- Every extra word is a reason to say no. Some calls shared too much at the front desk. Less works better: no pitch, no AI, and Ken mentioned only if asked.
- An email is easy to ignore. A callback time isn't. Email was offered too early on some calls. A transfer or a callback time comes first. Email works best when someone asks for it.
- The voice is all the prospect gets. Energy, pace and a smile come through the phone. Low energy sounds like low confidence.

KEY TAKEAWAYS: 5 RULES FOR THIS WEEK

1. Listen first. Answer what was said, then go back to the goal.
2. Ask, don't tell. Questions usually open doors. Pitches usually end the call.
3. Time beats email. Leave every call with a time, a number or a transfer.
4. Own words, same meaning. The playbook is a guide, not a script to recite.
5. Be clear and honest. Every statement should be accurate and approved.

THIS WEEK'S CHALLENGE

- ☐ Team rule: say "Do you have two minutes?" zero times.
- ☐ Post one line that worked in the group chat every day.
- ☐ Next session: explain each of the four tracks in one sentence, without the script.

INDIVIDUAL FEEDBACK

Mark

Strengths

- His tone sounds confident, like he belongs on the call.
- Polite and persistent, without sounding pushy.
- When a gatekeeper offered help, he followed through and got the direct line.

To work on

- "Wrong office" is not a dead end.
  "Which office is he in? Do you have that number?"
- Ask for time, not email.
  "When's the best time to catch him today?"
- Confirm the right office before hanging up.
  "Just to confirm, is this [Company]?"
- Vary the lines. Repeating the same sentence on every call sounds like a recording.

G-Anne

Strengths

- A warm, polite voice that gatekeepers respond to.
- She asked for a callback time in the mock call. That's the right instinct.
- She took ownership of her feedback, a strong sign of growth.

To work on

- Nothing to sell at the front desk.
  Instead of "grow faster using AI," say:
  "It's about [Prospect]'s practice."
- Skip "Do you have two minutes?" Go straight to the question.
- "Not interested" is not the end.
  "What are you focused on with your practice right now?"
- Know the four tracks well. Being able to explain them without the script makes any question easier to handle.
- Log every call. The tracker is how progress gets measured.

ACTION ITEMS

Who	Action	When
Both	Log every call, tag the outcome in GHL, and count follow-ups per lead.	Daily
Both	30 minutes on the playbook: the four tracks and why each line is said.	Daily
Both	When someone asks to be removed, mark Do Not Call in GHL right away.	Today
Mark	Write 5 natural ways to ask, "When's the best time to reach them?"	Next session
G-Anne	Rewrite the opening and gatekeeper lines in her own words, with no pitch words.	Next session
Both	Stuck on a line? Post it in the group chat and we'll fix it together.	Anytime

The team is closer than it feels. A strong first 20 seconds can turn a gatekeeper call into a booked meeting.
