Coaching Recap | 10/13 Eastern Time

With Bea (Client Success Manager) and Arque (Success Coach)

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS

- Gatekeepers are still the main challenge. Keep going. Every call is practice.
- Listen, then respond. When a gatekeeper says "wrong office" or "they're busy," answer that first. Don't go back to the script line.
- Clarify before you give up. Confirm the company and ask for the prospect by first name.
- Share less, ask more. Mention Ken only if the gatekeeper asks. Ask for the best time to call back.
- Email is the last resort. Try for a callback time or a transfer first, unless they ask for an email.
- Understand the playbook, don't just memorize it. When you know why each line is said, you can say it your own way.

Mark

Strengths

- Professional, confident tone.
- Polite, clean exits.
- When a gatekeeper offered help, you got the direct line and email.
- Persistent without being rude.

To work on

- Confirm the company when the greeting is unclear.
- When told "wrong office," ask for the right office number.
- Ask for the best callback time before asking for an email.
- Vary your lines. Don't repeat "calling on behalf of Ken" every time.

G-Anne

Strengths

- Polite and warm with gatekeepers.
- Asked for a callback time in the mock call.
- Open to feedback, and you own your next steps.

To work on

- No pitching to gatekeepers. Save AI and services for the prospect.
- Skip "Do you have two minutes?" and go straight to your question.
- After "not interested," ask a question instead of pitching.
- Tag every call and keep your tracker complete.
- Know the four tracks well enough to explain them without the script.

KEY TAKEAWAYS

- Acknowledge first. Respond to what they said, then go back to your goal.
- Be direct. Answer the question, add one line, then make your request.
- Callback time over email.
- Same meaning, your words. The playbook is a guide. Say it in a way that feels natural to you.
- Always honest. Only say what's true. Use approved facts only.
- Energy matters. Smile, breathe and keep a steady pace. Your voice is your tool.
